two younger brothers in their Japanese-style house about two miles from the bomb blast center. They joined in the flight to the mountains. The Palchikoff family and other white aliens in Hiroshima weren't burned, she said, but thousands of Japanese were scorched "jet black."

of the house when the bomb exploded, escaped injury by falling on the ground but his playmates remained standing and were burned fatally. Their house was destroyed but not burned, she said. While the family was walking up the mountains, she related, bushes frequently erupted into flame without warning.

knew no treatment for the burns and merely swabbed them with mercurochrome and castor oil. The tylist said some persons died in two or three days from severe burns. Others grew gradually weaker and died at the end of a week, and in some cases their heads became misshapen bulges within a few hours.

WORLD TODAY

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

(Substituting for McKenzie).
Holland, faced by a serious threat to her wealth in Indonesia, is caught between the devil and the deep blue sea in her efforts to rehabilitate an economy almost completely disrupted by war.

To the immediate problem of domestic existence has been added the probability that her long-range economy must be adjusted to a steadily diminishing return from the rich colonies, and the possibility that some day she will lose them entirely.

What she can do to offset this is the problem. Already the suggestion has been made that Holland should have part of Germany to offset her war losses, especially the land despoiled by German flooding. Now there is talk of expanding this idea to give her a more self-contained economy.

The Dutch have treated the subject gingerly. Their present border with Germany, for the most part, has stood since the 16th century. It was arbitrary then, but as time passed the peoples on either side became more and more distinct, and the Dutch are wary of a "Sudetenland" which might plague them years from now, even though the example has been set by Poland in eastern Germany.

In considering a strip of Germany as replacement for flooded polders, the discussion has centered principally around an area from 20 to 50 miles from Aachen to the sea at Wilhelmshaven.

This presumably would include some coal mines just north of Aachen, some textile and paper manufacturing centers west of the Rhine, but would skirt the northern edges of the Rhenish-Westphalian industrial concentrations in the Ruhr and along the Rhine-Ems Canal, and would encompass principally agricultural lands.

A glance at this map shows that by a slight extension of this previously discussed area, Holland would come into possession of a small but rich industrial area where lignite and coal mines, steel and chemical plants, await renovation.

But she would also come into possession of a great mass of ruins which have been German cities, and would have to displace hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of Germans whose counterparts, driven out of Silesia by the Poles, are producing a terrific headache for the occupying authorities in Germany. Either that or try to absorb them, a system which has proved fatal all over Europe. Also, there is a question whether Holland has the manpower to rebuild and operate any important new industrial area.

There is the possibility that relaxation of the Dutch hold on the Indies may come so gradually, as in the case of Britain with some of her former colonies, that adjustments can be made as time goes along. But Holland, so badly off from the war, so much in the fix of Caesar when "everything had to be done at one time," can hardly hope for anything immediately except some guidance which will permit her to choose the lesser headaches.

G. E. BLACKMORE AWARDED MEDAL

Former Merchant Marine Now Civilian After Sea Duty

George E. Blackmore, who is getting ready to set up his carpentry, painting and electrical business here, only recently was a Lt. (jg) in the merchant marine with two years and eight months of service.

For part of that service, Blackmore has been awarded the Mariner's Medal by E. S. Land, administrator of the War Shipping Administration. The medal was received when a Jap zero attacked his ship November 15, 1944.

A civilian engineer in Washington D. C. before he entered the service, Blackmore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Blackmore of route three. He, his wife and their two children live at 623 East Paint Street.

The letter regarding his medal follows:

"By authority of the Congress of the United States, it is my privilege to present to you the Mariner's Medal in token of the injuries you received when your ship, the S. S. Caribbean, was attacked by the enemy November 15, 1944.

"Your injuries were sustained in a service which gallantly upheld the traditions of those hardy mariners who defied anyone to stop the American flag from sailing the seas in the critical days of the birth of this republic. The modern counterpart of this service is the vital link upon which our nation depended to transport to our far battlefronts the material without which our armed forces could never have hoped for victory.

"Allow me, with this expression of the country's deep appreciation, also to extend to you its gratitude for your devotion and service."

Truman Says New Foreign Policy Heartened Russia But There's No Evidence of It

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—The Moscow dispatches said Mr. Truman's declaration of the new American foreign policy "heartened" Moscow.

But no heartening and no change was immediately evident in Moscow's actions. The very same day the Russian delegation walked out of the United Nations food conference in Quebec, and in newspaper columns parallel to those reporting the heartening were stories of the Communists unleashing their army of a million men upon China in civil war.

A break in the stalemated condition had been hopefully promised between the lines of some comment for the past few days—since Ambassador Gromyko's visit brought Truman and Stalin into correspondence. The grapevine here has been reporting Russia is loosening up, that Stalin went away for that month to think things over and decided the Russian tactics at London, which broke up the peace conference, should be moderated.

Enthusiasts with large ears to very small spots of ground here have heard Russia is coming wholeheartedly into the world organization. These hopes have not reached print in any formidable way, but they are present behind the renewed negotiations.

Simultaneously an old note has crept back into the dispatches from Moscow. A very famous writer for a large American newspaper lectured Americans, when he announced Mr. Truman had "heartened" the Russians. He said we must realize Stalin is suspicious of us. This note has been taken up by other commentators, who say the whole problem now is whether this government can appease the suspicions of Russia.

When this note comes into any discussions, I go out. This is the basis by which Russia never lost a point in dealing with Mr. Roosevelt. There are no valid grounds for Russian suspicions of any nation right now, and everyone realizes this, including Stalin. The thought of attacking Russia does not exist anywhere in the American mind. A fear of Russia is present in this country, but it is not an offensive fear (in the military or diplomatic meaning of offensive.) We all know this.

So when they start that old stuff and nonsense, it can only suggest propaganda is being laid for appeasement again. Consequently genuine hopes for sound settlement may not prove justified even if one is announced.

The Russian walkout from Quebec, for instance, was predicted upon something more tangible and obvious than ill-founded suspicions. This was a conference of the nations to promote food production throughout the world and make people eat more of it, an ideal which should be right down the Russian alley, if she needs the help from us she has been requesting. Her delegates to that conference demanded representation there for an extraneous organization which has nothing to do with food—the World Trade Unions Federation.

This WTUF is the international labor organization which our CIO's Hillman bit on, with results similar to the mastication of a green persimmon. He went to Paris for its convention a few weeks back only to find the Russians in charge of the convention bringing in a report allowing them voting strength for 27,000,000 union workers while Hillman and the British were allowed a small fraction.

The British could not accept such a swallowing of the international interests of their unions. A compromise was worked out which gave the Russians only about 80 percent domination of WTUF instead of 95 percent.

The Reds even got representation for unions in Romania (which they occupy) although the British Laborite Sir Walter Citrine publicly said he had never heard of a union in Romania. Russia also showed control for French and Mexican labor.

Naturally the food conference could not inconspicuously seat these people, as the Russians well knew. The raising of such an issue could only have been an excuse for withdrawal.

Similarly before the ink was dry on the Asiatic peace treaties by which the Russians agreed to withdraw from Asia and keep their Chinese Communists quiet, the Communies started a civil war. Not only this, but Moscow reared and demanded ouster of General MacArthur and a joint hand in administering Japan. She had been in that war 25 days (which, incidentally she entered in violation of her treaty with Japan.)

On the plain face of events, there seem good grounds for suspicions but can these be cleared by appeasement? It is singularly clear that they must be dispelled by actions from Moscow.

Experiences of Washington C. H. Soldier in Months of Combat in Europe Now Can Be Told

By SGT. BOB MINSHALL
(Special to The Record-Herald)

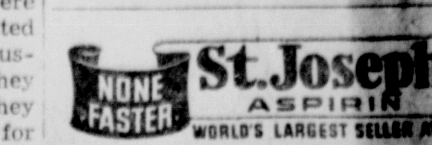

While we fought the final stages of the war, and while thoughts were being turned to our peace-time relations with the conquered enemy, some stuff it would be impossible to expect that over night the American soldier could be changed from a killer—out to crush everything associated with Germany, into a peace-maker who could smile at the people he yesterday wanted to kill.

But strange as it might seem, the change was made, and almost over night. The G. I. didn't consider the change so strange for it wasn't hard to remember the strange game we played in combat so it didn't seem so unusual. No more so than things like the times we spotted Jerries and pulled our M1 rifles to our shoulders and as we brought him into the sights and squeezed the trigger we gritted our teeth and cursed the "bastard" for making us a killer. When he fell dead we declared in a self-satisfied way that there lay a good German—for the only good German was a dead one. But when the aim was poor and we didn't quite kill the Heine, our medals raced forward and did everything possible to make him live. We never could quite understand why, for we meant in our hearts to kill him. But that was the American way, and it was the right way. Yesterday a killer—today a peacemaker. Impossible? They are doing it every day, your sons, husbands, and friends. They learned in combat when it's time to laugh and be gay and when it's time to be quiet and solemn. The peace they have so rightfully earned will be a lasting peace because they know how to be friendly, but firm. Fighting the American way taught them that. While they took one more step and fired one more shot they laughed when it would have felt better to cry; they were quiet at times when they wanted to talk; they fought on when muscles and bones cried that they couldn't go another step, but they knew the cause was justified for it was rooted deep into everything that stood for America. They remembered the good and pleasant things—like Sunday school and God and freedom of worship they remembered mothers and wives, freedom from want, the comforts of home—simple though they might have seemed at times. All of these were America. So, today, in the way they walk down the street, the way they tilt their heads back, the way they help some elder across the street, or shoo the chicks from in front of an oncoming peep, or wrap up a little feller's hurt finger, they are proving that they are Americans. So, whether it's in war or in peace, theirs will always be the American way.

The maple leaf is Canada's emblem.

Browning Club Studies Works of Robert Browning

Browning Club members assembled at the Hotel Washington club rooms, Tuesday evening, to hear an outstanding program on the works of Robert Browning. Since this year is the fiftieth anniversary of the Browning Club, which was originally established to study the writings of Robert Browning, there was keen interest in this enjoyable program.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. B. Murray. The secretary's report and communications were read by Mrs. Jess Feagans. The treasurer, Mrs. Thomas Bush, reported most of the club dues have been paid.

A piano solo "Hungarian Murzuka," played by Mary Sue Belles, opened the program which was in charge of Faye J. Mayo.

Mrs. Elton Elliott most capably discussed "Robert Browning's Use of Art as a Theme." Her selections and interpretations, excellently given, were from "Andrea De Sarto," "Saul," "My Last Duchess," "Fra Lippo Lippi," "The King and the Book" and "Evelyn Hope."

Quoting from Browning, Mrs. Elliott read a quotation which showed one phase of Browning's use of art:

"We're made so that we love first when we see them painted. Things we have passed. Perhaps a hundred times nor care to see;

Art was given for that Good uses us to help each other so, Lending our minds out."

The subject of the second paper was "Browning's Romanticism" which was given by Miss Golda Baughn in a most interesting manner.

Miss Baughn said Browning was a great romanticist, portraying beautiful nature scenes, showing his interest in people with their emotions of love, hate, joy, sadness, and expressing his firm belief in God.

Examples of Browning romanticism were read from "Meeting at Night," "Home Thoughts from Abroad," "Paracelsus," "Pippa Passes" and "Easter Day."

Crusaders Class Has Party at Wasson Home

Miss Dorothy O. Wasson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Wasson, was a very cordial hostess when the Crusaders Class of the North Street Church of Christ met at her home for the monthly business meeting, Monday evening.

Kinzer, Jr. Miss Marcia Highley, president, presided over the lengthy business meeting. The group decided to buy a desk for the minister's study and Miss Christine Switzer, Jane Cummings and Patty Cabbage were appointed as the committee to purchase this. Next month, Mrs. Ned Kinzer, Jr. will be hostess for an outdoor affair especially planned as a get-together for the members, old and new.

Later in the evening, the hostess served very delicious refreshments with pumpkin pie and whipped cream as the dessert. Mrs. R. O. Wasson and Miss Jane Cummings assisted the hostess.

Informal visiting rounded out the evening.

VICTORY LOAN IS OPPORTUNITY TO SAY THANKS

Care of Wounded Veterans To Be Financed by Eighth Bond Drive

The Victory Loan gives people of Fayette County an opportunity to show by action their gratitude to our disabled soldiers. Otis B. Core, chairman of the eighth bond campaign, said today as he reminded workers of a meeting at 8 P. M. Wednesday in the Dayton Power and Light Company office.

"It is this victory loan which shall help to make it possible to hospitalize and rehabilitate them, so that they may take again their rightful places in society. We cannot fail — we must not fail these heroes of ours," he said. The quota here is $625,000.

Fighting has ceased but the war won't be over for those who have had to pay its cost and care for the wounded, seeing to their rehabilitations.

War costs and veteran aid will total $344,000,000,000 by next summer, the Budget Bureau estimated. Educational costs for returning veterans and their readjustment will take $4,000,000,000. On top of this, the yearly cost to provide adequate veteran aids will total in the vicinity of $4,000,000,000 each year for ten years, it was said. There will be a gradual decline each year.

Victory Bond Money Essential

Continued need for huge bond sales and the holding of those now owned until maturity was seen with the release of the figures. More than ever, it was said, "To have and to hold" applies to Victory Loan and War Bonds. More than ever it is necessary to give all-out support to the Victory Loan officials said.

The Budget Bureau estimates that "war costs — actual and prospective — will amount to $340,000,000,000 by next June 30, and the public debt will approximate $273,000,000,000 as compared to the statutory limit of $300,000,000,000" for the fiscal year of 1946. Add the veteran cost to the war cost and the estimated total is $344,000,000,000.

Core said that recasting the figures that went to Congress in the annual Presidential budget message in January show that the original estimate of $70,000,000,000 for the war this year alone has been reduced to $50,500,000,000 due to the war's end.

Demobilization Comes High

When this year ends there will remain unobligated authorizations of nearly $10,000,000,000, and unliquidated obligations of nearly $60,000,000,000 approximately. "Even with victory some of these authorizations will be needed for meeting expenses incident to the liquidation of the war effort."

"Not only war," Core reminded, "but also demobilization of the war machine is costly." Thus it is seen the holding of Victory and War Bonds by their owners and the sale of more Victory Bonds becomes the first duty of the home front in its fight to maintain a stable economy.

AMERICA'S BRAIN SHIP TO COME HOME SOON AFTER WIDE CAREER

vessel, true "brain center" for vast and delicate amphibious operations. Sheltered by her thin sides, navy and army leaders directed landings of hundreds of thousands of troops on hostile shores—that had to be won.

Among her star boarders have been King George VI; Generals Omar Bradley, George Patton and Mark Clark; Field Marshal Montgomery; the late Secretary of the Navy Knox, and such naval dignitaries as Sir Bruce Fraser, commander of the British Pacific fleet, and U. S. Vice Admiral H. K. Hewitt and Daniel Barbey. She also has been second home to scores of war correspondents who learned that every voyage yielded front page news.

However, the Ancon was a civilian at heart.

When she was put into service in June, 1939, on the run between New York and Cristobal for the Panama Railroad Company, no one had any idea she would become the farthest ranging communications ship of the war that was to break only a few months later.

She joined the army transport service in January, 1942, and made two trips to Australia carrying American troops. She then participated in the Casablanca landings and rescued survivors of a naval transport torpedoed nearby. After a voyage to Oran and Algiers, she returned to the Norfolk Navy Yard where she was converted into a combined headquarters and communications command ship. In July, 1943, she was the command vessel for General Bradley in the landing of the 45th Division at Scoglietti, Sicily.

The fire she underwent there was nothing compared with the ten-day siege she suffered at Salerno, where General Clark used her to direct the opening of his Italian campaign. Under incessant aerial attack, she miraculously escaped with only a few shrapnel injuries to deckmen, although the cruiser Savannah and other vessels near her suffered heavy casualties and damage from German radio-controlled bombs.

Her luck held again in the invasion of Normandy when she was the flagship of Rear Adm. John L. Hall and Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commanders of the force that stormed deadly "Omaha beach," whose costly sands are overlooked now by a cemetery with thousands of American graves.

Converted to Pacific duty, she went through the Okinawa campaign unharmed as the flagship of Vice Adm. Harry Hill, commander of the fifth amphibious force. For three weeks she underwent almost daily Japanese suicide attacks, and once in an 18-hour period her gunners helped beat off 19 air raids.

She also took part in the bloodless Tokyo landing and her last major job was to serve as press ship for the Japanese surrender aboard the battleship Missouri.

There probably won't be any brass bands waiting to welcome the Ancon when she reaches America. But she has earned a hero's homecoming.

FARM MARKETS ARE DISCUSSED AT ROTARY CLUB

Farmer Friends Are Guests At Luncheon To Get Preview of Future

"Will our own markets be able to take care of our own production after the immediate post-war demand?" Prof. Virgil R. Wurtz, rural economist at Ohio State University, asked Rotarians and their farmer guests at the Tuesday noon meeting at the Country Club.

Prof. Wurtz said he believed that in five years foreign markets, which now are pleading for American goods, will dwindle. He said also that the present controversy between "bickering unions and factory management" had slowed reconversion here and estimated that it would be the middle of 1946 before industry would be completely converted to peace-time production and the nation started on a prosperous trend.

Speaking of the "Economic Outlook for the Future," Prof. Wurtz asserted that the purchasing power of the people must keep step with agricultural incomes if farm prices are to be maintained for the prosperity of the farmer.

He recalled that in the last war, industrial production was ahead of agricultural production. During the present war, agricultural prices have increased 36 percent, while industrial prices have been stretched higher than that. He compared the present 36 percent increase with the 150 percent hike in farm prices during and immediately after World War I.

Admitting that predicting future developments with certainty was next to impossible, he said he believed farm prices would go down because of the wartime increase in per capita food production. "The farmer's prosperity is related to high employment and high income," he said.

Land prices at present are 69 percent higher than the 1935-39 period, he said, adding that farm produce prices were not increased proportionately.

The $300,000,000,000 present national debt is not too serious if the nation is able to maintain half that amount as its annual national income, Prof. Wurtz said. If the annual national income goes down, the debt is serious, he added.

He also pointed out that with incomes and prices up, the value of the dollar goes down.

Billie Wilson, president of the club, thanked Prof. Wurtz for one of the best meetings of the year. Ray Brandburg, program chairman for October, introduced the speaker.

The farmer friends whom the Rotarians had as their guests were introduced individually.

The new 10,800 ton Victory ships will carry the names of 60 or more U. S. colleges and universities.

If Bud finds no other way to wring sympathy for Lou, he slaps him. This always gets the audience rooting for Lou. The above analysis of why Abbott and Costello zoomed to the screen's top box office team in less than five years was made by Jean Yarbrough, who directed them in "In Society." "Here Come the Co-Eds," which is due Wednesday at the State Theatre. Also on the same program—word that Richard Dix is once more to star in a new "Whistler" mystery, "The Power of the Whistler," coming to the State Theatre on Wednesday, should be welcome news to his many personal fans and also to those on this whodunit series which has become one of Columbia Pictures' most popular products. # COUNTY LEVY BELIEVED LOWEST IN ENTIRE STATE

IS REDUCED TO 2.90 MILLS BY BUDGET BOARD

County To Finish Year With Over $100,000 in the General Fund

At a meeting of the Fayette County Budget Commission, Tuesday afternoon, the county levy was reduced from 3.10 mills to 2.90 mills for the coming year, representing a cut of .20 of a mill and placed the county levy at what is believed the lowest of any county in Ohio.

The reduction of the county levy does not mean an actual reduction in the tax rates County Auditor Ulric T. Acton pointed out, because half of the 20 mills will be allocated for school purposes and the other half for local government.

The 20 mills reduction represents approximately $6,500, Acton stated.

In 1940 the county levy was 3.30 mills. This was repeated in 1941, while in 1942 and 1943 it was reduced to 3.25 mills. In 1944 the rate for this year was fixed at 3.10 mills.

The additional reduction of the county rate was made, Acton stated, as result of the huge surplus in the county general fund, which, at the end of this year, may reach over $100,000.

This huge sum has been built up during the past few years by economical administration of the county's affairs, it was stated.

The record shows that on January 1, 1942, there was a meager $40.28 in the general fund of the county.

In announcing the reduction in the county levy, Acton, who with Prosecutor John B. Hill had conducted the budget hearings, also stated that the rates generally in the various taxing districts remained practically the same as they are this year. Rates for Washington C. H. are unchanged.

The hearings held by the budget commission were attended by officials of all taxing districts, and the finances of each were discussed and agreements reached as to rates.

Because he has been confined to the hospital recovering from burns, County Treasurer Charles A. Fabb was unable to attend the budget hearings as the third member of the commission.

THREE WCH WOMEN HEAR BISHOP SPEAK

They Oppose Military Training For 18-year-olds

Miss Margaret McDonald, Mrs. M. J. Hagerty and Miss Bees Dean were among 1,000 women who heard Bishop Michael J. Ready of the Columbus Diocese tell an organization meeting of the Columbus Diocesan Council of Catholic Women that President Truman's plan for universal peacetime military training for 18 year olds was "dangerous to the welfare of the nation."

Defense of this country lies in "a sense of decency, honor and justice" among citizens, the bishop believes. He spoke Tuesday in Columbus.

"The only sure guarantee and defense against war is the abandonment of compulsory conscription," he declared by all nations, the stressing of the principles of the Atlantic Charter and the advancement of a sound moral and economic system at home and abroad," he declared.

He asserted "one of the extremely grave faults of the late war was the shocking indoctrination of millions of youths in practices held by decent citizens to be immoral."

The session named three temporary officers to the new organization, a department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. They were Mrs. S. L. Hall, president, Mrs. Anne Marie Cline, secretary, and Mrs. Frank Vogel, treasurer, all of Columbus.

The women's council here has not been organized.

PENSYL ENTERTAINS 4TH WARD WORKERS

Music, Refreshments Feature Hospital Campaign Effort

A very interesting and attractive plan to give instruction and information to workers in the fourth ward for their efforts in the final days of the campaign for the Fayette County Memorial Hospital, was inaugurated by George Pensyl, ward chairman Tuesday evening.

The volunteers who had agreed to visit homes in this ward to get out votes favorable to the hospital project next Tuesday, were invited to assemble at the Pensyl home on South North Street where they were delightedly entertained with music by the Washington String Trio, composed of Mrs. Otis B. Core, violin, Mrs. Robert Parrett, cello and Mrs. George Pensyl, pianist. Doughnuts, coffee and cider, were served.

During the business meeting which was held exactly one hour as promised by Chairman Pensyl, he explained briefly the duties of the workers, distributed hospital literature and asked three members of the county hospital committee who were present to answer any questions on which workers desired information in their final days of the campaign. Chairman Ralph Nisley, Walter Patton and Forest Tipton answered these questions.

There was high interest shown by the group of workers present and real enthusiasm for the hospital project was displayed.

WOMAN IS SENT BACK TO HOME

Gave Birth to Child While in Truck En Route Here

Mrs. Angie Hatchett, Lexington, Ky., who gave birth to a baby while in a truck headed for this city after she had been picked up at the roadside near Mt. Sterling last week, was placed on a bus and sent back to Kentucky, Tuesday, by Relief Director Mrs. Lucille Leach.

The woman was taken to a rest home here for attention and the relief director said that bills were paid. The child, dead upon arrival here, was buried in the Washington C. H. cemetery.

It will be recalled that Mrs. Hatchett and her daughter were enroute to their home from Columbus, and Mrs. Hatchett became ill in a truck in which they were riding, and left the truck at Mt. Sterling.

Starting to walk toward this city her condition became so serious that she fell along the road, where another truck driver, with assistance of the daughter and passersby, brought her to this city and she was taken to the Carr Rest Home.

It was then discovered was made that she had given birth to a son, prematurely, and that the child was dead.

Mrs. Hatchett, before leaving, expressed her deep appreciation for the kindness and attention shown her at the expense of the community, and said that anyone in her own state would not receive the attention she had received here.

HALLOWE'ENERS FACE TROUBLE

Starting Leaf Fires Has Serious Penalties

Firemen were kept busy extinguishing a series of leaf fires over the city, started by thoughtless Halloweeners, and as a result lookout will be kept for such offenders and if caught, severe punishment is promised.

Some of the fires kindled were where they would have ignited automobiles parked at the curb, or reached other property, in which case a crime of arson would have been committed, it was pointed out by Fire Chief George Hall, who urges parents to see that their children do not start further fires.

One of the fires started Tuesday night was headed toward the Washington Lumber Co. plant and the Coffman Stair plant when firemen extinguished it, indicating the grave dangers of starting such fires.

GRACE CHURCH CHOIR TO REHEARSE THURSDAY

Mrs. George Pensyl will be choir director for Thursday night's Grace Methodist Church choir rehearsal, it was announced today. She will replace Loren Wilson, regular choir director, whose father died this week.
